

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This thesis could not be completed without the following important and wonderful people whom I am very grateful for their help, guidance, valuable comments and encouragement.

First of all, I would like to express my deepest gratitude and greatest appreciation to my brilliant major advisor, Assistant Professor Dr. Nawamin Prachanant. Throughout the years of my M.A. study, he was always there to offer help and advice and to gently move me in the right direction. His expertise in research is extremely impressive. His deep and broad knowledge of literature on English language learning and teaching has always inspired me. I am endlessly grateful to him for his kindness, patience, and understanding to walk me through a difficult time. As a distinguish researcher, he was always ready and quick to advise me. I would never have been able to complete this research without his total support in all aspects and I am proud to have had him as my advisor.

I am greatly indebted to Dr. Kampeerapab Intanoo, my research co-advisor, who helps me complete conducting this research. He always takes an extra step to help and guide me also. I am indebted to Dr. Prayoon Chaowaneenart, for his devotion to be a chairperson of my thesis committee. I am also grateful to him for his valuable advice and information of research he gave me. I would also like to thank Dr. Saowaroj Ruangpaisarn for agreeing to serve as a member of my thesis committee. This thesis would not absolutely have been possible without them.

I would like to express my sincerest appreciation to Miss Sumittra Pankulbadee, Dr. Chookiat Jarat, and Mr. William Francis Gorman, the teachers of English Programs, Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences, Buriram Rajabhat University (BRU) who devote their time to be the experts for this study. Without their support and recommendation, this research may not have been carried out. I owe deepest appreciation to all teachers of English Program, Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences, BRU, especially Assistant Professor Sutamat Kotcharat, Dr. Surachai Piyanukool, Mrs. Pawinee Ruammai, and Mr. Bamrung Kanram, who always support and encourage me to step forward on the educational stage. Their guidance and recommendation inspired me to accomplish the study.

I also owe a special thank to the third year English major students in the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences, BRU for their cooperation to be the subjects of this study.

Moreover, I would like to express my whole-hearted thanks to my beloved mother, Buala Pongpuehee and my beloved father, Cheyyo Pongpuehee, for their love, for giving my life in the first place, for education, for unconditional support and encouragement to pursue interest, and for unfailing faith in my ability to succeed. My special thanks also go to my smart brother, Siri Pongpuehee and my pretty sister, Somruethai Pongpuehee whose love and care have been the greatest motivation to carry out this study. Furthermore, I am forever grateful to my grandmother, Ta Racharinthorn, who have been taking care of me since I was very young. Her warmth, love, and kindness are always there for me whenever I seek for it.

Finally, I offer my regards and blessing to all of those who support me in any respect during the completion of the project.
